

Maryann Parker is a legal advocate for unions, working people, and just, equitable communities.

Since 2019, she has served as counsel to the National Education Association (“NEA”). Maryann counsels NEA and its affiliates on innovative strategies to build strong, member-driven unions. She also advocates for educators and students through legal policy work in state legislatures and with State Attorneys General.

From 2005-2019, Maryann was associate general counsel at SEIU, leading its public services division legal team for nine years. She counseled SEIU on its State Attorneys General program and won litigation and policy victories to spur organizing of child care, human services, and higher education workers.

Her practice also embraces international labor and employment law. Since 2019, she has advised the Supply Chain Worker Support Fund on the development and use of the International Labour Arbitration and Conciliation (“ILAC”) Rules, which are now hosted by the Permanent Court of Arbitration. Maryann presented these rules to a group of experts in The Hague in 2022. She served as the Co-Chair of the International Committee of the ABA Section on Labor and Employment Law from 2013-2016 and has spoken at legal conferences around the world.

From 2001-2005, Maryann represented unions and employees as an associate attorney at the firm of Bredhoff & Kaiser, PLLC. Prior to that, she served as law clerk to Judge Anita B. Brody of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. She holds a J.D. from Columbia Law School, an M.P.A. from the Princeton School of Public & International Affairs, and a B.A. in History and International Studies from Yale.
