

Kong Phallack (Prof)

KONG Phallack is a professor and researcher at the National University of Management, an Attorney at Law, Arbitrator and Mediator. He has been appointed as an arbitrator of Arbitration Council since 2003 and has mediated and arbitrated for more than 800 cases. He holds an LLM in Law and Politics (Nagoya University, Graduate School of Law, Japan), LLB (Royal University of Law and Economics, Cambodia), DDS (Royal University of Health Science, Cambodia).

He has 22 years in teaching and 21 years in law and policy development including legal practice and mediation. He has been engaged in mediation on social and environmental disputes impacted by the business as well as resolving labour disputes. He has written laws, policies papers and books related Cambodian Laws.

His publication includes Introduction to Cambodian Law (2012), Cambodian Constitutional Law (2016), Contemporary Environmental Law in Cambodia and Future Perspectives (2020), Perspectives on Cambodian Constitutional Law (2020), Contemporary Cambodian Employment and Labor Law (2021), and Law in the Digital Age: and Protection of Consumer Rights (2021). His contribution to development of laws and policies are legal and judicial reform, ombudsman, telecommunications, post, cybersecurity, and personal data protection, public private partnership, social protection, social security, persons with disabilities, environment, health and so on.

