

Arthur Pearlstein, a Fellow with the College of Labor and Employment Lawyers, has a substantial background in conflict resolution, including workplace mediation, facilitation, and arbitration, with experience as a practitioner, program manager, professor, and trainer. In addition, Arthur has worked extensively in the area of dispute systems design in the organized workplace. He previously served FMCS as Director of Arbitration Services following appointments as a field mediator, as general counsel, and as head of the Agency's ADR and International Programs. Arthur was also Professor of Law and inaugural director of the Werner Institute for Negotiation and Dispute Resolution at Creighton University in Omaha. He has published multiple articles and been a contributing author to textbooks and handbooks on arbitration and dispute resolution in the workplace. Arthur has designed and delivered many training programs for arbitrators, mediators, and advocates. He received his J.D. with honors from Harvard Law School and holds a master's in dispute resolution from the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution at Pepperdine University and a B.A. from Haverford College.