

Dan Toth has served as the Director of retired members of the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) since 2018. The NALC is the sole representative of city delivery letter carriers employed by the U.S. Postal Service, representing over 200,000 active members.

Toth first became active in the defense of letter carriers when he took a shop steward position with Lorain, OH Branch 583 in 1984. He served as a local business agent and arbitration advocate, trustee and vice president, eventually rising to become branch president. He also served as director of education for the Ohio State Association of Letter Carriers. In May 2005, he was named a regional administrative assistant for Region 11, which serves the letter carriers of Ohio and upstate New York. In 2009 he was appointed to Region 11 National Business Agent and elected to that position in 2010 and again in 2014.

Toth studied industrial psychology at The Ohio State University. He and his wife, Nancy, have two adult sons: Russell and Matthew.
