

Lise Lareau

Lise Lareau is the former national president of the Canadian Media Guild/Communications Workers of America, which represents workers at the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Reuters, Canadian Press, BuzzFeed and others. She gained an interest and expertise in issues affecting precarious workers while working on a campaign to improve conditions in the reality TV industry, and served on the Canadian government's Labour Standards Advisory Committee. She now teaches about media and labour at Toronto's York University. Twitter @lisemlareau